Six-Fold Farm Aid Program Outlined in Speech at Topeka.

URGES FINANCIAL HELP

Credit To Relieve Mortgage Situation Advocated: Garner Joins Running-Mate.

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 14—Declaring that the present administration and two previous administrations, in all of which the President was an important member, failed utterly to understand the farm problem as a national whole, or to plan for its relief," Governor Franklin D Roosevelt, speaking today in the heart of the "farm belt" proposed a six-fold relief program He called for a "definite policy of giving those who have lost title to their farms, now held by institutions seeking credit from the governmental agencies, the preferential opportunity of getting their property back"

The Democratic presidential nominee spoke from the steps of the state capitol where a few weeks ago Vice President Charles Curtis accepted the nomination for a retention of his office Near at hand, as he enunciated his agricultural doctrine, sat Mr Roosevelt's "team mate," Speaker John N Garner of Texas, the Democratic vice presidential aspirant. Mr Roosevelt's speech here was the first prepared address of his 8,000-mile swing through the west, which began on Monday night when he left Albany.

Full Approval to Plan

Leading up to his six-point plan, the Democratic nominee declared

"I want now to state what seems to me the specifications upon which most of the reasonable leaders of agriculture have agreed, and to express here and now my whole-hearted accord with these specifications"

The specifications were

"First—The plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities, such as wheat, cotton, corn (in the form of hogs), and tobacco, a tariff benefit over world prices which is equivalent to the benefit given by the tariff to industrial products. This differential benefit must be so applied that the increase in farm income, purchasing and debt paying power will not stimulate further production

Second—The land must finance itself Agriculture has at no time sought and does not now seek such access to the public treasury as was provided by the futile and costly attempts at price stabilization by the federal farm board. It seeks only equality of opportunity with tariff-protected industry.

"Third—It must not make use of any mechanism which would cause our European customers to retaliate on the grounds of dumping It must be based upon making the tariff effective and direct in its operation.

"Fourth—It must make use of existing agencies and so far as possible be decentralized in its administration so that the chief responsibility for its operation will

BULKLEY DECLINES BETTMAN PROPOSAL

Insists That Prohibition Debate Be Before Public at Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14—Senator Robert J. Bulkley today insisted that his proposed debate on prohibition with Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, his Republican foe for the senatorship, must be held at Cincinnati.

In a telegram to Bettman, Bulkley asserted "I have fixed the time and place and you must debate or withdraw"

His statement was the latest in a series of telegraphic exchanges since last week, when Bettman challenged him to debate.

Bettman suggested that they debate before the Cleveland City club or the Cuyahoga County Bar association.

Bulkley's telegram today said:

"Last Saturday night at a Republican rally here you stated you would debate repeal and modification issue with me at any time and any place I might choose.

"Sunday I accepted, stating I would debate you at Cincinnati as soon as could be arranged. Monday morning I received your telegram suggesting the debate be shifted to a private banquet at Cleveland Monday afternoon I replied insisting upon wide open public debate at Cincinnati and suggesting Sept. 27 or 28.

"This morning I am advised through press associations that you have written me suggesting having expense of hall rent by station our debate on invitation of private organization.

"This does not meet my views that rabid debate must be with open to public. You must answer whether you accept what you said Saturday night.

"Pursuant to your challenge I have fixed time and place and you must debate or withdraw."

MISS COUGILL DIES OF INJURIES

COMES TO U.S.

Banished from her native Algeria when it was seized by the French, Princess Ehme, who made her home in Istanbul, Turkey, is shown as she arrived in New York, enroute to Rockford, Ill., where she will enter college. The princess is well known in Turkey as a leader for the emancipation of women.

SCAN RESULTS IN 8 PRIMARIES

Party Leaders Seek Signs of November Trends from Balloting.

GEORGIA IS VOTING TODAY

Prohibition Influence Holds Interest; Long's Slate Ahead in Louisiana.

By The Associated Press

Eager for signs of November trends, political leaders scanned results of eight primaries today, watched Georgia Democrats go to the polls, and pondered still Monday's Democratic victory in Maine's off-season election

In the absence of inter-party clashes, prohibition's influence as an issue was receiving attention from party chieftains in checking yesterday's primary ballots. In other sections they saw veteran office-holders fighting to hold their jobs.

In the east, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire and Senator Porter Dale of Vermont were renamed by the Republicans for the senate. Senator Ellison D. Smith, four-term veteran, again was named by Democrats in South Carolina over former Senator Cole L. Blease.

Michigan's incomplete returns indicated the renomination of all incumbents in the house of representatives.

With the backing of Senator Huey P. Long, Representative John H. Overton was victorious in winning the Democratic senatorial nomination in Louisiana from Senator Edwin E. Broussard Long's slate led throughout most of the state.

Early returns in Washington's primary found Senator Wesley L. Jones, sponsor of the Jones "five and ten" prohibition enforcement law, holding a narrow lead for renomination in the Republican primary. He was opposed by Adam Bexler, repeal candidate

Today in Georgia, Representative Charles P Crisp, legislative veteran, sought the Democratic senatorial nomination He was opposed by the youthful Governor Richard B Russell. Senator William F. George was unopposed for renomination in this state where the Democratic nomination usually means election.

Ten Georgia congressional seats also were at stake. Half a dozen contestants sought the gubernatorial nomination.

DEMOCRATIC LEADS IN MAINE BOOSTED

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 14—Democratic majorities in the Maine election Monday were given decided boosts today in a recheck of tabulations and addition of two small towns.

Louis J. Brann, first Democrat elected governor in 14 years, increased his lead over Burleigh Martin to 2,482.

The Democratic winners in the second and third congressional districts, Edward C. Moran Jr., and John G. Utterback, also gained over their Republican opponents. Congressman John E. Nelson and Senator Governor Ralph O. Brewster, while the advantage of Republican Congressman Carroll L. Beedy—sole survivor of the entire Democratic ticket—in the first district was reduced considerably.

WOMEN PLAN PART IN WELFARE WORK

Arrangement Discussed for Providing City's Needy with Clothing in Winter.

Marion womens welfare groups will assume virtually all responsibility for clothing the city's indigent poor next winter without the expenditure of city tax money if a movement launched last night materializes.

The groundwork for an organization of Marion womens welfare groups to undertake this task and to operate a relief clothing department in the city's new welfare center in the Davids street school, where all city relief activities will be centered after this week, was laid last night when Dr Carl W Sawyer, chairman of the Council of 100, called heads of representative women's welfare organizations to a meeting at White Oaks farms.

Committee Named

A committee was named at this meeting to confer with Dr Sawyer at once to determine how the organization shall function and to lay out a tentative plan for completing the organization and its program

Members of this committee are Miss Alice Hane, Mrs John Mc Namara, Mrs. Carl W Sawyer and Mrs Clifford A Owens

It appeared last night that the new welfare organization would undertake immediately two tasks One will be the organization of a sewing group to make into clothing 24,000 yards of cotton cloth to be given the city by the American National Red Cross and to mend used clothing that will be collected by the organization from Marion residents The second task appeared to be the establishment of a receiving and distribution setup at the city welfare center to handle the clothing and distribute it

The proposed setup for the welfare center probably will necessitate one full-time paid worker, who will be paid by funds obtained by donations, according to the plan outlined last night. This worker would cooperate with the city relief department and would fill the orders issued by that department.

Need Clothing for 5,000

Sufficient garments to clothe 5,000 persons is approximately the need for the next nine months, Dr Sawyer estimated

A citywide appeal for used clothing probably will be made in the near future when the organization sets up its headquarters in the city welfare center

Marion residents will be asked

EUROPE AWAITS YANKEE FLIERS

"American Nurse" with Trio Aboard Believed Nearly Across Atlantic.

HOPE TO REACH ROME

Report Indicates Craft Sighted at Point Near Azores.

By The Associated Press

PONTA DELGADA, AZORES, Sept 14—The steamship Ashburton reported today that it had sighted an airplane bound east about 450 miles northwest of the Azores at 4 30 a m (11 30 p m. Marion time Tuesday).

It was assumed that this was the "American Nurse" on a non-stop flight from New York to Rome

Vigil Maintained on British Coast

By The Associated Press

LONDON Sept 14—A sharp lookout was maintained in British coast towns early today for the airplane 'American Nurse' enroute from New York to Rome, following reports late last night that the plane was sighted over the ocean 1,000 miles east of Boston.

The ship, piloted by William Ulbrich, and carrying two passengers, Miss Edna Newcomer, undergraduate nurse, and Dr Leon M. Piscull, New York physician, was expected to reach the European coast line during the forenoon if it maintained its ordinary speed.

The steamship Winnebago reported it had sighted the plane at 5 30 p m, (Marion time) last night on the southern steamship line to Europe, about 1,000 miles due east of Boston

This would mean the plane had traveled almost 100 miles an hour since it took off from New York at 6.10 a. m yesterday.

The French coast was watching for the American plane

Italy Shows Keen Interest in Flight

By The Associated Press

ROME, Sept. 14—The airplane American nurse, which is making its third attempt at a non-stop flight from the United States to Rome, had aroused the interest of all Italy today.

The air ministry instructed that a radio network be set up connecting all Italian airfields to report the progress of the plane, which was expected to reach Rome about midnight tonight.

PROGRAM OF COUNTY FAIR IN FULL SWING

Attendance of 5,000 Expected Today: Exhibitors Complete Displays.

The Marion county fair was in full swing this morning, following a last-minute rush of exhibitors to prepare their displays last night.

The fair board expected 5,000 persons to visit the fair today. Approximately 2,000 were on the grounds yesterday, but most of these were arranging exhibits or competing therein.

Judging was under way in several departments this morning.

To Start Races

Sixteen horse races skipped in the 2:20 trot, the first event of the afternoon race program. Nine were booked to start in the 2:20 pace, the other event of the Wednesday race program.

Final preparations were made today for the first night fair program. At 7 tonight, 22 teams engaged in the tug-of-war contest will draw for places in the preliminary matches, and will pull in front of the grandstand about half an hour later. The finals will be followed by an aerial act and other entertainment.

Exhibits Prepared

Several of the exhibit buildings were closed before noon last night. Late in the afternoon, the poultry building began to fill, and the picture fair exhibit began to take form. Exhibits of handiwork of school students and 4-H club members were receiving finishing touches this morning.

Entries in most departments this afternoon and this morning are mounting up to those of last year, despite the fact that the board has eliminated exhibitors who do not reside in Marion or adjoining counties. The swine department had approximately the limit of draft entered, as reported over last week. A splendid array of commercial exhibitors and booths were finishing the midway this morning, and carnival men were busily engaged in their booths and concessions.

Thursday and other events of the Agricultural society have been opened headquarters to permit the exhibitors to enter in Greetings.

LEGION NEARS FINAL TEST ON MAJOR ISSUES

Bonus Payment Stand, Proposal To Censure Hoover Are Chief Problems.

BOMB THREAT REVEALED

War Secretary Hurley Guarded Closely as "Red" Warning Note Is Received.

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. Sept. 14—The major issues before the American Legion convention—a committee-favored demand for payment of the bonus and a contested proposal to censure President Hoover—neared final tests today in the annual national meeting of the service men's organization here

The bonus resolution will come before the convention with indorsement of the majority of the legislative committee, but committeeman said the majority opposed the resolution censuring the President for the use of troops in ousting the B E F from Washington

While the committees debated, legionnaires learned of an anonymous letter telling of plans of a "red" organization to bomb the reviewing stand where Secretary of War Patrick J Hurley and other officials sat during yesterday's parade In revealing receipt of the note, federal and military authorities who refused to permit use of their names, said that the stands were guarded all Monday night and the secret service detail assigned to Secretary Hurley was doubled.

"Red" Warning Sent

Authorities said the anonymous letter which reported the purported bombing plans was sent to an official, whom they declined to name, by a person who had apparently become conscience stricken It enclosed a copy of a letter, which it said was written by a "red" organization here, directing the bombing

Officials quoted the informant as writing he would not mind "murdering certain officials" but he objected to endangering women and children

Contradicting the announcement of determined opponents of the bonus payment, national headquarters said "no" debate is expected, on that resolution

Delay in reporting by the resolutions committee was the result of a one-man fight for the resolution criticizing the President George Brown of Pennsylvania, member of the committee, refused to be swayed from his determination to force a floor debate on the B E F after an hour's debate in executive session of the committee last night

Two Reports Likely

The result will likely be two minority reports One by Reynolds on the bonus, and the other by Brown on the B E F

Partisan political lines were ignored in the bonus and B E F controversies

George W. Malone of Nevada appeared to have the largest block of pledged votes of any of the dozen or more candidates for national commander.

HUTCHINSONS READY TO LEAVE GREENLAND

Rescued Family Likely To Reach Scotland in About Three Weeks.

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, Sept 14—The George Hutchinsons, no longer a flying family, were safe and sound here today after their rescue yesterday by the trawler Lord Talbot and they faced the problem of getting away from Greenland before the long Arctic winter closes in.

They had a good night's sleep last night and were feeling fine this morning.

The Lord Talbot, which rescued them yesterday from the spot near the Eskimo village of Kinir where their plane was forced down and wrecked by a short inland flight, brought them all here at 3.30 yesterday afternoon.

Hutchinson's two daughters, aged eight and six, were the only ones in the party of eight who could not help comprehend the serious escape they had.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Sept. 14—The trawler Lord Talbot, which rescued the flying family of Hutchinson on the eastern Greenland coast yesterday, will arrive here in about three weeks and it was considered probable that the Hutchinsons will come here with her as guests until they can arrange for their transportation to the south.

Pat's speech sounded like the kingfish's over the radio. "Now remember we is all brothers in that great Democratic, to equate heights of de ole."

Pat got away with his line, but no votes.

CRASH VICTIM

MISS BERNICE COUGILL

JOLLIFF GETS 2-YEAR TERM

Richwood Man Sentenced on Charge of Aiding Jail Break Attempt Here.

ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY

Bartis Denies Guilt in Slaying of Tom Basacos; 9 Prisoners Arraigned.

David Jolliff of Richwood was sentenced to two years in the Mansfield reformatory after he had pleaded guilty before Common Pleas Judge George B Scofield in common pleas court yesterday to a charge of assisting a prisoner in an attempted escape from jail

Jolliff, the only one of nine persons arraigned yesterday to plead guilty to indictments returned by the September term grand jury, admitted carrying hacksaw blades to Frank Ferguson while Ferguson was in the county jail.

Bartis Denies Guilt

Theodore Bartis of 444 West Center street pleaded not guilty to a first degree murder charge in connection with the slaying of Thomas P. Basacos of 132 West Columbia street on Aug 31.

Two of a trio of Cynthiana men charged with two grocery holdups here Aug 20 pleaded not guilty to robbery indictments against them. The third, Clark East, was in the City hospital, unable to appear in court because of wounds inflicted by Astward Stover, manager of one of the two stores the three are charged with robbing

Paul Clevenger of Marion, one of the 12 men indicted by the grand jury, has been taken to Mansfield reformatory for violation of parole, Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm reported to the court when Clevenger's name was called for arraignment on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to T. E Bonnemeier

Not guilty pleas were entered by the following: George Ipachuns and Robert Goss, charged with entering the garage of O. H. Meinmeyer of Prospect with intent to commit larceny; Clif Emerson, charged with breaking and entering a box car with intent to commit larceny; Walter Hale, charged with breaking and entering a garage owned by D. W. Benedict; Hershel Davis, charged with rape; Chester Townsend, charged with carrying concealed weapons. All are of Marion.

Robert Forshey of Marion, indicted with Clif Emerson in connection with the box car robbery, was not arraigned.

PRODUCTION INCREASED

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 14—The Wheeling Steel Corporation's Steubenville works increased production to 46 per cent during the past week, officials announced.

Legs Useless

(1932 Rogers Special)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 14—They found the flying family. They ought to let the father out there a couple of more days. Just to throw a scare into him for taking those children.

Two wheels were both off for Santa. A nurse, with "million dollar legs." Over that ocean to see place where legs is no good to you, no matter what price they are.

Who said being secretary of war wasn't a humorous legislature? Mr. Hoover doubled Pat Hurley to pinch hit for him, and then the American Legion, and try and get some Republicans votes.

Pat's speech sounded like the kingfish's over the radio. "Now remember we is all brothers in that great Democratic, to equate heights of de ole."

Pat got away with his line, but no votes.

FATALLY HURT IN ACCIDENT AT CROSSING

Mt Victory Woman Was Prominent in Marion and State Music Circles.

MAINTAINED STUDIO HERE

Fractured Skull, Crushed Chest Cause Death 24 Hours After Crash.

Miss Bernice M Cougill, 36, of Mt. Victory, prominent in Marion musical circles, died at McKinley hospital in Kenton today at 12.05 p m from injuries suffered yesterday in a grade crossing accident.

Miss Cougill lived more than 24 hours after she was thrown nearly 75 feet when a Big Four railroad locomotive struck her stalled automobile at a crossing on the western edge of Mt Victory. She had climbed outside the machine when the locomotive struck.

Skull Fractured

She suffered a fractured skull, a crushed chest and a fractured left leg She was unconscious until she died. Harry Jones, a farmer, witnessed the accident and called an ambulance. She was taken immediately to the Kenton hospital.

Miss Cougill was returning to her home after giving a number of piano lessons in the western part of Hardin county. It is believed she saw the approaching train too late to stop before driving onto the crossing. When the machine reached the crossing the motor stalled.

She was the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Bert Cougill. Her father is owner of the Mt. Victory elevator She taught piano in Logan, Hardin, Union and Marion counties

Miss Cougill's last appearance in Marion was on July 3 of this year when she played a piano duet with Mrs. H. K. Mouser at a Rotary club luncheon.

Later in the month she left for New York City, for a vacation and to study She returned from the vacation a week ago

Miss Cougill was recognized throughout state music circles as a composer. Musicians of note complimented her upon her compositions Friends here today expressed a doubt that any of her many compositions had ever been set down on paper, because she did not believe that any of them were entirely ready for publication

First Appearance Here

Her first appearance here was on April 28, 1920, at a private party, a tea, given at Hotel Harding by Mrs Mouser and Mrs James C. Woods At that time she played on a program with Truitt Brown of Kenton, singer. One of his numbers was Miss Cougill's composition, "Land of My Dreams."

In 1921 she returned from New York City where she had studied under Joseph Lahvine, celebrated musician Previously she had studied in the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and with Mrs Edgar Stillman Kelly.

Her first classes here were conducted in a private home, but later she established a studio at 220 East Church street.

Miss Cougill appeared on many concert programs here. She was a member of the Marion Lecture-Recital club

In much of her professional work she appeared under the name of Bernice Cougle. Her family name is spelled Cougill.

BIRTH CONTROL ON CHURCH CALENDAR

Lutheran Conference Plans Discussion of Subject Today.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 14—For the second successive day, the Lake Erie conference of the Missouri Lutheran synod, English district, today left a place on its program for a discussion of birth control.

Papers on that subject and on the church liturgy had been prepared for presentation before the conference which yesterday re-elected Rev. H. W. Horton of Cleveland, president and chairman.

The 30 delegates at the opening session heard Rev. C. W. Ehrt of Ft. Wayne, Ind., read a paper on the church liturgy and Rev. Martin Walther of Buffalo, N. Y., deliver the first address of the conference on birth control. Mr. Walther turned for his material to the method would have which he used quotations both for and against birth control.

MARION HORSESHOE TOSSERS DEFEATED

Galion U. B. Church Team Wins From Local Combine.

By a score of 2,319 to 1,943 the horseshoe pitching team of the United Brethren Sunday school of Marion lost to a team of the Galion United Brethren Sunday school in a series of 24 games played in Galion last night.

Each team has now won two matches and plans are being made to play off the tie. Roy Penby of Galion, who held the championship of the state in 1924-25, was the spectacular performer in last night's games, making 190 ringers.

Barth D. Roop, brother of Rev. C. V. Roop, pastor of the Marion United Brethren church, is captain of the Galion team, while Samuel Colet is captain of the local team.

GRAIN PRICES TEND HIGHER

Favorable Cable Reports Sends Prices Slightly Higher at Opening.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 — Grain prices tended upward early today, influenced by cable reports of bargaining for 50,000,000 bushels of United States farm board wheat by a European cartel. Upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations were an additional stimulating factor. Opening unchanged to ¾ higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ½@¾ up and subsequently advanced further.

Indications of some export business in United States hard winter wheat and also in corn helped to strengthen prices. Here was no material selling pressure on wheat, and houses with connections east were apparently inclined to lean toward the purchase side of the market. A better tone in stocks and cotton was among the reasons given for this preference.

Official reiteration of the French government's recent estimate of this year's wheat crop in France, 56,000,000 bushels less than the latest forecast from grain trade sources, was construed as bullish. Here were assertions too that big export business in Canadian wheat had been done overnight Liverpool dispatches said British millers were buying, and that Argentine advices told of frost and excessively dry weather.

Corn prices responded to definite word that seven loads of white corn, 56,000 bushels, had been bought for export. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values and of cereals.

New High Mark Seen in O. S. U. Extension Work

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14—Attendance records promise to reach new heights in Ohio State university's commerce extension classes this winter.

After a tour of 14 cities where the classes will be held, Prof. Thomas L. Kibler, commerce extension director, said interest in the night classes is greater now than ever in the eight years they have been held. He was of the opinion economic conditions were responsible for the increased interest.

Classes this year on economic and business subjects will be held in Canton, Circleville, Columbus, Findlay, Fostoria, Jackson, Lancaster, Lima, Marion, Mt. Vernon, New Philadelphia, Portsmouth, Sandusky and Steubenville. The first classes will meet during the week of Sept. 26 and continue 12 weeks, with resident members of the university faculty in charge.

Interest in the extension program, Professor Kibler pointed out, is evidenced by the fact that classes conducted in 15 cities during the past two years attracted students from 92 Ohio cities and towns. The long distance attendance record was claimed for a Nelsonville banker, who drove to Columbus and back each week of four quarters—a distance of 140 miles for each lesson period.

Almost every conceivable business concern was represented in the enrollment, Professor Kibler said. The classes had students who were graduates or former students of 126 colleges and universities.

He said some of the extension students had become so interested that they had matriculated in the university for resident work.

JOAN BLONDELL IN "MISS PINKERTON" WILL COME TO OHIO

Mary Roberts Rinehart's clever little mystery story, "Miss Pinkerton," all about a nurse who assists detectives in clearing up strange cases, has been brought to the screen and will be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Ohio.

JOAN BLONDELL

Joan Blondell was given the star role of "Miss Pinkerton." And she has in the cast Ruth Chatterton's new husband, George Brent, Holmes Herbert, veteran actor, Donald Dilloway, Ruth Hall, O. Henry Gordon, Blanche Friderici, Mary Doran and others

Mrs. Rinehart's story ran serially in a popular weekly magazine before it was released in book form. Brent plays the role of the detective and Elizabeth Patterson has the role of the eccentric last member of a once-wealthy family, whose nephew is shot in her home

NEW "FIND" IN PALACE FEATURE

Dorothy Wilson, who typed scripts at the studio before a screen test brought her a feature role in "The Age of Consent," which will be shown Thursday through Saturday at the Palace, is considered by studio officials to be their best "find" in a long time. And Dorothy Wilson was not imported, with columns of publicity trailing her across the country. She was found in the business office of the studio.

"The Age of Consent," a story of ultra-modern young folks, is based on Martin Flavin's successful stage play, "Cross Roads."

In the cast, in addition to Miss Wilson are Arline Judge, Richard Cromwell, Eileen Pringle, John Halliday and Eric Linden. "Back Street" was held over, replacing the Richard Dix picture, "The Roar of the Dragon."

GARBO PICTURE AT STATE TONIGHT

Garbo fans who have longed to see the great actress in gayer moods, following a long series of heavy dramas, will love the last half of the picture "As You Desire Me," the Pirandello story which will show for the last times tonight at the State. And those who like her as a great dramatic actress, will eat up the first part, so that the picture is sure-fire for her legions of admirers. Melvyn Douglas and Erich Von Stroheim have leading roles

VETS APPLY FOR MEDALS

Purple Heart Decorations Await Ex-Service Men in This Locality.

Applications of wounded war veterans for the purple heart decoration are being filed daily with W. D. Brown, manager of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, by veterans in Marion and adjoining counties in preparation for Purple Heart day, to be observed here next month.

Mr. Brown has urged veterans to file their applications as soon as possible, and not later than Oct. 1. Approximately 7,000 in this district are eligible for the decoration by virtue of wounds or gas shock suffered during any war, he estimated.

The discharge papers of the veteran applying must be produced at the Chamber of Commerce office in the Marion National bank building opposite the courthouse, he said. A brief statement regarding the nature of the wound suffered by each veteran also is required on the application blank.

Thirty applications for decorations have been forwarded to the war department, which is distributing the decorations to eligible soldiers as a feature of the observance of the Washington bicentennial.

LEGION POST PLANS ARMISTICE PROGRAM

General Committee Named To Arrange for Celebration of Veterans.

A general committee to begin plans for an Armistice day celebration was appointed last night at a meeting of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 182, American Legion, at the dugout.

W. E. Hane, William E. Marks, Dr. F. L. Thomas, E. L. Hill, Arthur S. Brooks, W. L. Laughman, Lawrence M. Sager, D. J. MacDonald and Loring F. Warner are members of the general committee.

Commander J. W. Llewellyn conducted a memorial service for Thomas Bannon, a member of the post. He talked of Bannon' life, as a small boy in Greece and later, as a soldier and as a private citizen. The memorial service was conducted by the commander, assisted by MacDonald, Brooks and Parks Kennedy. At the close of the service the more than 70 Legion men present sat with bowed heads for 20 seconds and Mr. Kennedy sounded taps. The colors and the post charter were draped in mourning for a period of 30 days.

The post voted to give its hearty cooperation to the members of the Legion Boy Scout Troop No. 5, who will serve a penny supper Saturday, Sept. 20, at the dugout. The proceeds of the supper will go to maintain the Harding Area headquarters in Marion, which have now without any financial support.

Cooperation also was voted the local Rainbow division chapter and the Disabled American Veterans chapter of Marion in their Purple Heart day activities next month. Dr. Thomas Laughman and C. C. Caldwell were appointed a committee to work with the two groups.

The annual election of officers for 1932 will be held at a meeting Sept. 27.

WOMEN PLAN PART IN WELFARE WORK

Arrangement Discussed for Providing City's Needy with Clothing in Winter.

to do their share of the job by cleaning and mending the old clothing before turning it over to the organization, Dr. Sawyer said.

He pointed out that the lay organizations should be able to take this heavy burden off the city relief department, and to materially lighten the relief burden which is largely responsible for an acute financial problem here.

This, he explained, is another part of the program of the welfare committee of the Council of 100, based on three months' operation of a welfare clearing house in which a record of every indigent family was made.

It is one, he said, of several proposals which should materially lighten the cost to the city of meeting its relief problem. Others, to be undertaken in the future, he said, include the proposal that Marion grocers place welfare barrels in their stores, together with a list of staple foods needed for needy families. A citywide appeal would be made for Marion residents to make a small purchase for the welfare barrel when they buy groceries. Groceries placed in the barrel would be turned over to the city welfare center, and distributed among the needy with proceeds raised from the municipal garden. Flour from the Red Cross and other tangible relief the city found it practicable to distribute. Under this plan, he explained, the city would reduce the size of its grocery orders to distressed families in proportion to the amount of produce and groceries given them at the time the order was issued.

Another Plan

"While the savings might appear to be small on an individual order, they would amount to a sizable figure over a period of months," Dr. Sawyer declared.

The welfare committee has another plan in mind to make a citywide effort to find jobs for unemployed men with dependents. A job that would make it possible for these men to earn $2 each would relieve the city of the care of one family for approximately one week, as the city distributes its relief in $2 grocery orders, he pointed out.

Any organization, group or individual wishing to assist in the plan for clothing the needy are urged by Dr. Sawyer to notify the Council of 100 and tasks will be assigned to them in the near future.

SQUAREHEAD CLUB HOLDS Y PARTY

Members of the Squarehead club and their guests enjoyed a party in the club's room at the Y. M. C. A. last night. One of the features of the evening's program was a contest in which each couple were sent out with a list of 30 objects which they were to obtain. The couple which returned first with the complete list was awarded a prize. The list included among other things, night-crawlers, horse-hairs and bugs.

HARVEST SERVICE TO BE HELD HERE

Harvest home services will be held Sunday at the First Reformed church, Dr. Robert W. Hucke, pastor, announced this morning. Dr. Hucke asked that all members of the congregation send flowers, fruits, vegetables, grain, corn and wheat to the church for decoration, by Saturday at 12:30 p. m. A committee of women of the church will decorate the auditorium. Mrs. Elias Furstenberger, Mrs. Clarence Conklin, Mrs. Sylvester Hurr, Mrs. Royal Andrews and Mrs. Harry Wires compose the committee.

Renew Traffic Lines.

Workmen in the city service department today were renewing traffic lanes near schools in the central part of the city and painting new lanes in the vicinity of schools in other parts of the city. The painting of the lanes was postponed when other traffic painting was done earlier in the year. In order that they might be readily painted when the schools were opened. Yellow paint is being used.

FRANK PETERS DIES AT RESIDENCE HERE

Former School Teacher of Marion County Succumbs After Long Illness.

Frank E. Peters, a teacher in the LaRue, Caledonia and Martel schools for 34 years, died last night at 8:40 at his home at 122 McWilliams court. He had been in ill health for the last three years and died of complications developing from a nervous breakdown.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ira Peters, two brothers, John H. Peters of 202 West Center street and Harvey W. Peters of 153 Clover avenue and a sister, Ava M. Peters of near Meeker.

Mr. Peters was a member of the Masonic Blue lodge at Marseilles and the Smart Sunday school class of Epworth M. E. church. He was born at Brush Ridge, the son of Wilson S. and Louise Bibler Peters, both deceased.

The funeral will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. at the home. Rev. W. Mariell George of Wesley M. E. church will be in charge. Burial will be in the Brush Ridge cemetery.

FOUR ARRESTED IN CITY POLICE RAID

Two women, two men were arrested and a quantity of beer was seized by police in a raid at the home of Jefferson Blake at 147 Canby court shortly before 2 a. m. today.

Blake pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor when arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin this morning and was held for a hearing at 1 p. m. Friday. The two women, who gave the names of Fern Chase and Grace Carlisle, and the second man who gave his name as Harry Bifritt, were each fined $10 and costs when they pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct charges.

MARION MAN GETS MANSFIELD PAROLE

Milford Daily, convicted in Marion county on a charge of burglary, has been granted a parole from Mansfield reformatory effective Oct. 15, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus. His parole is one of 188 granted inmates of the reformatory by the state board of paroles when it recently considered 258 cases.

Daily pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing the residence of Mrs. James Guthery at 373 East Center street and was sentenced to the reformatory on Sept. 13, 1930.

WEST AFRICAN TO SPEAK THURSDAY

LoBagola, the West African bushman who has lectured at Oxford university and has written several books that have been widely published and read, will fill four speaking engagements in Marion Thursday.

In the morning he will address assemblies at Central and Vernon Heights Junior High schools and at noon will be the Kiwanis club guest speaker at luncheon.

At 8 p. m. he will speak at Calvary Evangelical church. The meeting will be open to the public, free of charge. A silver offering will be taken.

HUNTING LICENSE SALES INCREASE

Hunting license sales leaped upward today in the office of Clerk of Courts Everett B. Grigsby as Marion hunters prepared for the opening of the squirrel season Thursday.

Thirty-four licenses were sold yesterday, and a similar number was sold Monday. Sales early this morning indicated that approximately 100 would be sold today.

Held to Grand Jury.

Wayne Barry, who was arrested Aug. 29 on an assault and battery charge filed in municipal court by Farrel Landers, waived examination before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin yesterday afternoon and was bound over to the grand jury and his bond fixed at $150 which he furnished and was released.

Meeting Postponed.

A meeting of the Ladies' Division of the Marion County Democratic club, which was scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed, officers announced this morning. The postponement was made because of the Marion county fair. A meeting will be held in one week.

children, who undertook to fly to Europe and landed on Greenland ice floes, have been found alive after their plane crashed. Heaven be praised and thanked.

It should not be necessary to suggest that if the father and mother continue the journey they leave their children and the pretty little dolls behind. To risk your own life in the promotion of trans-Atlantic flying is heroic. To risk the lives of children is something else.

6 MARIONITES SEEK CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS

Naturalization Hearing Scheduled in Common Pleas Court Thursday.

Petitions for naturalization of six Marion residents are scheduled for hearing before an examiner from the district director of naturalization at Cleveland in the common pleas courtroom Thursday afternoon.

The examiner will make recommendations to Judge George B. Scofield at the close of the examination, and citizenship either will be granted or refused by the judge.

Petitioners for citizenship are Emma Wahrie LaSalle of 198 South Vine street, a native of Switzerland; Mary Kura of 487 Mary street, Christian and Mario Henning of 506 Mary street, Alfred H. Boeh of 301 Oak street, Elizabeth Bay of 506 Mary street, all of Germany.

The petition of Nicolas Hristo Cutilaru of 190 Olney avenue, a native of Macedonia, was not filed in time to be heard Thursday.

rest with the locality rather than with newly created bureaucratic machinery in Washington.

"Fifth—It must operate as nearly as possible on a cooperative basis and its effect must be to enhance and strengthen the cooperative movement. It should, moreover, be constituted so that it can be withdrawn whenever the emergency has passed, and normal foreign markets have been re-established.

"Six—The plan must be, insofar as possible, voluntary. I like the idea that the plan should not be put into operation unless it has the support of a reasonable proportion of the producers of the exportable commodity to which it is to apply. It must be so organized that the benefits will go to the man who participates."

Changes Advocated

For the permanent adjustment of agriculture, Roosevelt suggested a reorganization of the department of agriculture; a "planned use of the land," and "national leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes."

The Democratic standard bearer said "the present administration and the two previous administrations, in all of which the President was an important member, failed, utterly, to understand the farm problem as a national whole, or to plan for its relief."

He added "they destroyed the foreign markets for our exportable farm surplus, beginning with the Fordney-McCumber tariff, and ending with the Grundy tariff, thus violating the simplest principles of international trade, and forcing the inevitable retaliation of foreign countries."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted "there is the necessity for refinancing of farm mortgages in order to relieve the burden of excessive interest charges and the grim threat of foreclosures."

Continuing he said: "I am prepared to insist that federal credit be extended to banks, insurance or loan companies," or others "which hold farm mortgages among their assets—but that these credits must be made on the condition that every reasonable assistance be given to the mortgagors where the loans are sound, with the purpose of preventing foreclosure.

Calling attention to the farm board and its stabilization operations, Mr. Roosevelt said "farm board speculative operations must and shall come to an end." He added "the effort resulted in squandering hundreds of millions of the taxpayers' money."

Garner Boards Train

Shortly after the Roosevelt train arrived here at 9:35 a. m. the Democratic presidential candidate and his running mate, Speaker John N. Garner, went to the rear platform and chatted with the crowd that was on hand to greet the nominees. They talked chiefly about the results of the Maine election. It was the first time the two Democratic standard-bearers have appeared together in the West. They were together in New York about a month ago.

Garner Meets Leaders

Mr. Garner, who boarded the Roosevelt special at Kansas City this morning, waited in a state room until the presidential nominee awoke. Garner talked with W. T. Kemper, Missouri national committeeman; Breckenridge Long, a former Missourian who now lives in New York, and members of the Roosevelt staff.

Greeted at Kansas City by Kemper and Arthur F. Mullen, national committeeman from Nebraska, Garner said:

"Looks like Maine confirmed the general opinion."

"Yes," said Kemper, "but the election isn't over yet. We haven't counted the votes yet."

It was a perfect day for the farm speech which many of the Democratic nominee's advisers believe is the most important of his campaign.

As the Roosevelt train moved into the sixth state it has touched since leaving Albany last Monday, a squadron of 12 army airplanes roared overhead, dipping and diving a salute to the distinguished visitor.

Greeted by Crowds

The sweep of the Roosevelt special through four states yesterday and last night brought the New York governor through a series of crowds that grew progressively larger until he reached Jefferson City, Mo., last night.

There, for the first time since he left Albany, the candidate left his train for a short drive to the state capitol grounds. A crowd that massed about the station was so dense that there was some delay in putting into position the high-railed ramp by which Mr. Roosevelt customarily leaves the train.

After much pushing and shouting by police and railroad officials the crowd finally was moved back and he walked down the runway to a waiting automobile. The crowd cheered him loudly there, and again at the state capitol.

Speaks To Delegates

Many of them were members of the state Democratic committee in convention. Mr. Roosevelt was introduced by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who presented the candidate in less than a dozen words.

The governor, too, spoke briefly, reminding the crowd of the outcome of the Maine elections and asking what Missouri was going to do in November. A shout went up from the convention delegates at this. He added that he simply had stopped to "say howdy."

NO PROGRESS MADE IN SUICIDE MYSTERY

New Puzzle Faces Bern Case Officials as Deposit Box Yields Nothing.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 14—The suicide of Paul Bern flung another mystery today into the inquiries of investigators, already muddled in the hunt for a motive and the disappearance of a sweetheart of his past, the elusive Dorothy Millette.

Authorities had pinned much on a sealed safety deposit box but found when they opened it yesterday, hardly more than two simple papers bequeathing annuities to Miss Millette, and cash gifts to relatives and friends.

They failed to find a recently executed will in which the 42-year-old film executive presumably made his widow, the blonde screen beauty, Jean Harlow, his chief beneficiary. Miss Irene Harrison, for six years secretary to Bern, said she might have been "mistaken in where the document was placed."

Dr. Edward B. Jones, personal physician to the film director, arriving from a hurried trip to Honolulu, repeated the generally accepted theory Bern was subject to "fits of depression" and probably ended his life because of a "melancholia" which induced a "suicide mania."

Meanwhile no trace has been found of Miss Millette, who disappeared from a San Francisco to Sacramento steamer after Bern's body was found in his Beverly Hills home on the morning of Sept. 6.

HOOVER URGES NEW CAMPAIGN EFFORT

Defeat of Republicans in Maine Serves as Whip to Party Activity.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Eight weeks of renewed and more intense campaigning was today's Republican program after Democratic successes in Maine.

President Hoover's own caution to party workers from the top down was:

"The result of the election in Maine imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people may fully understand the issues at stake."

His running-mate, Vice President Curtis, said:

"We are greatly disappointed. It will only make us work the harder and we will carry the state (Maine) in November."

Mr. Hoover's views on the Maine results which saw a Democratic governor elected for the first time in 16 years, were given in a telegram to Chairman Sanders of the Republican national committee. This message was made public at the White House after extensive conferences between the President and two of his chief advisors, Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown, who later joined in predicting a high-speed campaign for the next two months.

The President's telegram was in reply to one from Sanders on the Maine election which said he was "disappointed in the vote but not greatly disturbed." Curtis' statement was made to newspapermen.

"I firmly expect you to carry that state," Sanders wired Hoover. "Since 1880 Maine has five times in presidential years elected a governor, state ticket and congressional delegation in September of opposite political faith to the President elected 60 days later."

SEEKS SETTLEMENT OF DAMAGE AWARD

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13—Immediate action to compel David Hutton, choir singer, or his wife, Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, to pay the $5,000 awarded Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, young Pasadena nurse, as a result of her breach of promise suit against Hutton, is to be taken by counsel for the nurse, it was announced today.

In the event Hutton is without assets, as he has publicly stated, an attempt will be made to investigate the assets of the evangelist, Lorrin Andrews, Miss St. Pierre's attorney, said said. He stated any money earned by Mrs. Hutton since her marriage would be liable to attachment.

CHURCH DISCUSSES MISSIONARY WORK

By The Associated Press

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 14—With lay delegates for the first time enjoying the same voting power as ministers, the northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today prepared to tackle the problem of financing missionary programs.

Economic conditions, bringing reduced revenue, has made the problem of carrying on missionary work without curtailment one of the principal concerns of the conference.

Bishop H. Lester Smith of Cincinnati pictured the problem as the biggest before the church when he addressed the 1,500 delegates at the opening session yesterday.

PHYSICIAN SPEAKS AT ROTARY MEET

Economic conditions in some of the old world countries observed while he was a student in Vienna was the subject of a talk by Dr. William H. Keenan of Coshocton at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Hotel Harding yesterday.

Dr. Keenan who served as an officer in the United States army during the World war recently completed a post graduate course in Vienna. He also made a study of economic conditions in France, England, Italy, Germany and Russia during his stay abroad.

REPLACE BATTERIES IN ALARM SYSTEM

Fire Department Improves Property; Use Current Rectifier.

The installation of a current rectifier to replace the use of wet cell batteries in the operation of the fire alarm system, has been completed at the central fire station and is now providing current for the system.

In addition to providing a more even current, the rectifier will eliminate the use of 80 of the 160 wet batteries formerly used, according to J. B. Yazel, mechanic at the central station, and in addition will greatly reduce the electric power bill by eliminating the use of a motor-generator which was run five hours each day to charge the batteries.

Eighty of the batteries formerly used, will remain in service as a "floating" power to be used only when the city current is off. In such an event the batteries would be automatically connected up with the system. The elimination of the battery system, firemen say, is another step in the modernizing of the fire department.

FRANKFORT — Gov. Laffoon has commissioned Frederick W. Holden of Fitchburg, Mass., a Kentucky colonel, but there's a string to it. Holden will be a colonel the governor said, provided Roosevelt carries Massachusetts in November. Mr. Holden, very confident of what November will see in Massachusetts, said his colonelcy was as good as in the bag.

Wed 50 Years; To Celebrate

MR. AND MRS. BARNTHOUSE

MR. AND MRS. Marion Barnthouse will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday with a dinner for members of their family and a few close friends at their home in Morral. No formal observance of the anniversary will be made and the celebrants plan to spend the day quietly.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnthouse always made their home in Marion county and, until moving to Morral in 1925, lived on a farm. They have one son, Homer Barnthouse living on Harding highway W., and one granddaughter; Miss Marie Wilson, who also lives west of the city on the Harding highway.

The celebrants were married half a century ago in Marion by Rev. A. D. Matthews, pastor of Epworth M. E. church in his home.

URGES MOTORISTS WATCH FOR CHILDREN

Opening of School Requires More Careful Driving, Auto Club Secretary Says.

An appeal to Marion motorists to exercise more than usual caution in view of the opening of schools this week was issued today from the Marion Auto club by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary.

Opportunities for injuries and deaths from auto-pedestrian mishaps have been multiplied by the opening of school, requiring several thousand pupils to cross the streets daily between their homes and school, she pointed out.

Pedestrian lanes at crossings near school buildings are being repainted, and the schoolboy patrols, controlling traffic at busy intersections where pupils cross, will begin functioning this week, she said.

2 PENSION BOARDS NAME 4 MEMBERS

Police and Firemen Elect; Patrolman McColley Is Only Change.

Police Captain E. C. Mackan was reelected a member of the police pension board for the fourth consecutive year at the annual election held by members of the police department Monday. Patrolman A. W. McColly was also elected a member of the board. He will succeed Sergeant L. E. Reardon.

Members of the fire department who also held their annual election Monday for members of the firemen's pension board, reelected Chief T. J. McFarland and J. B. Yazel.

The next step in the reorganization of the boards for the year will be the appointment by city council of two members from the body to serve on each of the two boards. One person belonging to neither of the city departments or council, will then be selected by the two members of council and by the two members of the two departments, to complete the board of six members for each department.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Sept. 15

THE astral influences bearing rule on this day point to particularly lively and high pressure activities, with the energies, faculties and forces all tuned up to aggressive methods and obstacles and impediments and result in much profitable and stabilizing work, but there is peril in speculation, taking chances too rashly and also from intrigues and secret or tricky manipulation.

If It's Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year of high gauge activities with all the energies and faculties under fine stimulus to bold initiative and profitable onslaught on old stagnations and impediments. There is important change, but reckless plunging, gambling and taking chances would be hazardous. Diplomatic secret or strategic power would be very gainful. A child born on this day seems to hold responsible, worthy, probably have a disposition to take reckless chances with life. However, it should be studious and clever and may make great records.

My Beauty Hint

BY GENEVIEVE TOBIN

IF ONE'S hands are to be attractive, the skin must be kept soft and clean at all costs.

Washing the hands with soap and water, and then applying a good hand lotion promotes their well-being. At night, after cleaning my hands thoroughly, I apply a good cream, rubbing it in gently and massaging carefully for a few minutes at least.

After washing, I dry my fingers, using a soft towel, by starting at the tips and working backward. This pushes the cuticle of the nails back and aids greatly in the care of them.

PROGRAM GIVEN AT W.C.T.U. MEET

A program on prohibition was given at a meeting of the Florence Richards W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Gladys Hall of 222 Orchard street. The following papers were given: "Prohibition in Brief," Mrs. Lloyd McCleary; "A Mild Catechism," Mrs. Glen Thomas; "The Rich Man and Prohibition," Mrs. Bertha Barkley; "Why Prohibition Has Come to Stay," Mrs. Martha Smith; "Shall the Brewers Have a Monopoly of the Liquor Trade," Mrs. Mabel Ringle, who was in charge of the program.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Hall and opened with singing the "Temperance Rally Song." In the absence of the chaplain, Miss Minnie Hoover conducted devotions. Mrs. Laura Elliot offered prayer. Mrs. Glen Thomas was a guest. A meeting will be held Oct. 11 at the home of Mrs. Lloyd McCleary of 284 Latourette street, with Mrs. Barkley in charge of a program.

CHAPTER TWENTY

A Serious Quarrel

He did not hear the crack of breaking timber, because it was lost in the roar of the fall, but he felt the shuddering jar of it. His head seemed to be wrenched with it.

He did hear Jervis' shout, and felt the grasp like an iron clamp on her shoulder. She felt it as she screamed, and the rush and the foam and the cold came up on her face, and her body and her breast. She swung up above the torrent, and there was nothing between her and the darkness below—a long, long way below.

The bridge was gone — everything was gone. She swung giddily in a frightful noise in her ears, and the water waiting for her. She thought for why she did not fall. She swung to and fro. It was all a confusion, like the broken part of a dream.

And then suddenly she came back out of the dream, to hear Jervis' voice above her:

"Can you lift your arm?"

The sound of the words had sounded her before, but not their meaning. She made a slow, weak effort to raise her right arm, but something clamped it down.

Then Jervis' voice again:

She stirred, reached up, and felt a grasp her wrist. Then she felt herself being drawn up, slowly, dreadfully slowly, while the noise of the falling, churning water seemed to be right inside her head. She did not seem able to think. The movement went on interminably.

Then she felt a scraping sensation across her shoulders and back. Then the feel of something solid beneath her. Something went round and round in her head. She gasped and struggled to sit up. She felt as if she had been wrenched in two. She got up on her knees panting.

The middle of the bridge was gone. A yard away the broken timbers stuck out over empty space. On her left Jervis was getting to his feet. Bran pressed against her and licked her cheek. She caught him about the neck and struggled up.

"Are you—all right?"

She nodded, holding Bran tight. And added in a fluttering voice that was much less audible than she meant it to be,

"What happened?"

Jervis said harshly, "The bridge broke."

She said, "I went—down."

He threw her a curious look. It was almost as if he accused her—an angry look.

"You might have been killed."

"You saved me."

"I grabbed your shoulder. We came down together."

Nan's heart contracted. She might have pulled him over—she might so easily have pulled him over. The words said themselves aloud:

"I might have pulled you over!"

Jervis stood there frowning.

"You very nearly did. If I hadn't come down full length before the bridge actually fell, we should both have gone with it. As it was, I managed to hang on, and old Bran took hold of my coat and pulled for all he was worth. I got a good handful of your dress, and thank goodness the stuff was strong!"

"Was it a long time? It felt very long."

"No. I couldn't have held you for more than a moment. I said 'put up your arm,' and I got hold of it; but if it hadn't been for Bran, I don't think I could have got you up."

At the sound of his name Bran thrust his head under his master's hand, jerking it up. Nan felt an envy of him. He had saved them both, and he could say how glad he was. She couldn't. It came over her how strangely they were standing here, speaking cold conventional sentences on the ragged edges of death.

She turned from the broken bridge and began to move stiffly down the path. Her knees shook a little, and before she had taken half a dozen steps Jervis' hand was on her arm.

"You're a bit shaky."

"A little. It's nothing."

They came out of the trees, but instead of climbing the slope they followed the easier gradient of the path. The sound of the fall receded. After walking silently for some time Jervis burst out with a sudden,

"I can't understand it."

Nan wondered if he felt the accusing leap of her pulses.

"He did it," she said.

Jervis stopped dead and swung her round to face him.

"What's that?"

He still held her by the elbow, and his grasp felt rough and strong.

"He did it."

"What are you talking about?"

"The bridge."

"You've got to say what you mean!"

"Yes—I saw him."

"What do you mean? Whom did you see?"

"Robert Leonard."

He let go of her so suddenly that she felt as if he had pushed her away. There was an angry color under his dark skin.

"We've got to have this out! You've got to say what you mean!"

"Yes, Jervis. I woke up in the night—something waked me—I don't know what it was. Then I heard Bran downstairs."

"You heard Bran!"—with angry suspicion.

"He was walking up and down and whining. I went to the top of the stairs and called him. He came into my room with me, and we both looked out of the window. He was very excited. I thought it was because there was a storm coming up."

"You seem to think he's a Pekinese! He doesn't mind storms."

"I know he doesn't. It wasn't the storm he was minding."

"No—I suppose it was Leonard!" Nothing could have been more incredulous than his voice: his eyes held a hint of fierce amusement.

Nan lifted her head.

"Yes, Bran is cleverer than you are—he knows when there's danger—He wouldn't go on to the bridge."

Jervis laughed angrily.

"Well—he was minding Leonard? And then, I suppose, you both saw him!"

"I did. I don't know if Bran did. I don't think he goes by seeing—he's got something else."

"You saw Leonard?"

"Yes, I did."

"Where?"

"Where the path goes into the trees."

Jervis laughed again.

"From your window! In the middle of the night!"

"Yes—I did. The moon went in, and there was flash of lightning. I could see everything very clearly, and I saw Robert Leonard. I did see him."

Jervis' manner changed: it became colder and lost its rough edge.

"I'm afraid you have rather an obsession about Leonard. I hope you won't go about saying this sort of thing to anyone else—it might get you into trouble. You see, it's quite impossible that you could have recognized him at that distance by a flash of lightning."

"I did recognize him," said Nan.

She began to walk on towards the house. Jervis came up with her.

"A man you've seen once!" he said in a taunting tone.

"I've seen him more than once—and I should know him wherever I saw him."

He gave an angry jerk of the shoulder and walked on in silence. The path entered a thicket, and presently came out upon the lawn. Just before they came to the house Jervis spoke again.

"What have you got against Leonard?"

She looked at him with a direct simplicity.

"He wants to kill you."

Jervis was startled clean out of his angry impatience.

"You can't possibly mean a thing like that!"

"I do mean it."

"You can't! I don't like the man—but it's a perfectly foul thing to say about anyone without proof."

Nan looked away. There was a note of appeal in his voice that weakened her. She took a step towards the house.

"You've no proof," said Jervis.

She looked back over her shoulder for an instant.

"The bridge fell," she said.

She went into the house.

To Be Continued.

GARDEN PROVIDES MORE VEGETABLES

The municipal garden on Windsor street continued to contribute toward the relief of the unemployed. On Monday and yesterday, 200 dozen ears of sweet corn, 180 heads of cabbage and five bushels of tomatoes were distributed to the needy, according to Safety Director Emery M. Murphy.

Orders for the vegetables are issued at the office of Relief Commissioner C. M. Tobin in the city hall and are then taken to the garden where the vegetables were given out.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Samuel Briston—Bound, Gagged and Badly Injured—Is Found in the Lonely Mountain Hut!

"WHAT'S that?"

With a nervous expletive, "Hen-ner-y"—the only member of our group not disciplined to silence in emergencies, voiced his astonishment—and apprehension—which the rest of us shared—at the deep groan which had come from the interior of the supposed deserted hut.

"Hush!" Wynne's sibilant monosyllable was peremptory, and Henner-y said no more. But Wynne went on hurriedly in the monotone he had used before.

"My fault, sir!" He was addressing Lee Chow with the deep respect that the high born Chinese friend of Hugh Grantland's always commands. "I didn't go inside the hut, I didn't dare to, for fear somebody would see me. But I got a chance to take a quick slant through a window, and I thought it was empty. But somebody might very well be lying in a corner, and I not see him. This is all beside the point, though. What's to be done, now?"

Is It a Trap?

There was no delay in Lee Chow's answer.

"It is either a trap, or some one in distress," he said. "In either case, we must find out what is inside there."

"Wait!" he added a fraction of a second later. Then he moved as noiselessly as an Indian to my side and bent his head to mine.

"You and Miss Mary must stay here in the shelter of the trees," he whispered. "If there is the sound of a shot, or if I call out, 'Down!' drop to the ground instantly. Your lives may depend upon your obedience. For your ease of mind, I will tell you that I do not believe there is danger for us, but he who is prepared is thrice armed. May I have your word not to come nearer until I summon you?"

"Of course," I said promptly, for I knew that women would only hinder the business of the next few minutes.

"And you, Miss Mary?" She turned his quiet glance toward Dicky's lovely young mixed with arm was linked in mine.

"Any thing!" she answered [illegible] lovely, then all in a moment young [illegible] added a whisper [illegible] question. "Dicky [illegible] I suppose he's right [illegible]

I put up my hand [illegible] her like the others [illegible] of the [illegible] pulsing [illegible] I [illegible] unopened [illegible] he [illegible] at [illegible] as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Chow [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

but when one of them—I guessed Wynne, though their figures were indistinct in the darkness, dropped to the ground, that he meant to crawl to the door of the hut, and from there put in motion whatever plan had been devised, I was sure, and although I neither could see nor hear his movements, I found myself mentally computing his rate of travel, and when my brain signaled an involuntary "now!" it was but the fraction of a second before we heard Wynne's voice in quick, raucous though low-toned command.

Who Is the Man?

"Hands up in there? We've got you covered, and there are plenty of us to take care of you."

There was no answer, but after a second of silence there came again that anguished groan.

"No monkey-business!" Wynne warned. "We're ready to shoot first and ask questions afterward. Ready!"

At the word, evidently a signal to either Lee Chow or Hen-ner-y, a brilliant ray of light suddenly illuminated the interior of the shack so thoroughly that even Mary and I could see that no one was standing upright within it. There was a low-voiced exclamation from Wynne, and then, after the powerful flashlight had played upon every inch of the interior of the hut, I found Lee Chow again at my side.

"There is only one person in the hut," he said, "and that a man, bound and partially gagged, and, I am afraid, grievously ill. Come. You may be able to help us."

He moved away, and I caught at Mary's arm in sudden panic.

"Oh! child!" I whispered. "Do you suppose? Could it be?—"

"It couldn't be Uncle Bradley," Mary said coolly, and I realized that her nerves were far steadier than mine," because it isn't nearly time for him to appear. Besides, if it were any one of our party, they'd know it. And say so." She nodded her head emphatically toward Lee Chow and Wynne.

But I had not thought that the man in the hut was one of the rescue party. Another fantastic conjecture was having its way with me, a conjecture that was incredibly realized when I had made my way into the hut and in the glare of the flashlight saw the unconscious figure of a man on the floor of the hut.

"Oh!" I faltered, pulling out a groping hand. "This is Samuel Briston!"

Jumpy Nerves.

An unpleasant little incident between an American banking outpost and the Japanese press adds to the impression, quite general in recent weeks, that Japan automatically puts its chin out for a fight when it knows Uncle Sam is in the neighborhood. Or, as the minister of war described suspicions that the bank, taking pictures for commercial use, was gathering material for military information, the charges "merely reflect the nervousness of some overzealous persons frightened at imaginary dangers."

The same situation would arise if the representative of a Japanese business firm in New York City were to be accused by that city's press of photographing fortifications for purposes of military information. It is unthinkable, of course, that the American press would be guilty of such an outburst of nervousness. Its nerves have not been shattered by the imaginary dangers that Japan's abused conscience have inflicted upon it.

There is, obviously, the most direct necessity to deal with Japan, in its present condition, in a manner calculated to be soothing rather than irritating to the nerves. There is a serious possibility that critical comment unfavorable to the Japanese cause might contribute to strained relationships, even though appearing in an inland paper of this type. Jumpy nerves have a way of exposing themselves to irritation. Lest there be any remote possibility of complications left unguarded, assurance is hereby given that Japan's condition stimulates nothing but sympathetic understanding.

To Preserve Orderliness.

Publication of the justice department's report on eviction of the bonus army is timed to take the edge off any censorious resolutions the American Legion may pass in its convention at Portland. Mr. Hoover attacked bitterly by veterans' organizations for calling out federal troops, rightfully employs the report as a defense of his judgment.

General opinion throughout the nation supported Mr. Hoover last July following the unfortunate incident. Since then, however, a visible wave of resentment has swept over veterans' organizations. While it probably has had no effect on those who originally believed the President's now-famous order was justified, it is potentially dangerous. As an office-seeker, Mr. Hoover was called upon to defend himself with the means at hand.

Unfortunately, the report prepared for him by Attorney General Mitchell is vulnerable in many places. Public opinion did not support eviction of the bonus marchers because there were criminals, radicals and pretenders among their number. It supported eviction because it was convinced that the presence of the marchers in Washington was subversive to orderliness. The possibility of congressional petition had vanished with adjournment of congress. The marchers automatically had changed from petitioners to members of a mob. Dispersion was warranted at the first sign of disorderliness which is exactly what happened.

President Hoover realizes, no doubt, that those who have been cursing him for the order which dispersed the bonus marchers will fall to the attack with renewed vigor, now that he has admitted his dislike of it. He only can trust that fair-minded citizens will continue to give him the support he deserves by acting in the interest of the majority of the people.

Blue Sky Thinkers.

Real intellectuals are rare birds. Small wonder they like to flock together. It forestalls extinction and gives them a chance to argue. That is why moderate success is assured for the intellectual rally called in the interests of Communism.

Notables like Lincoln Steffens, Theodore Dreiser, Sherwood Anderson, John Dos Passos and Alfred Fresh will give substance to the gathering. They will make the big wind to ruffle the feathers of lesser birds hanging around the edges.

Because the Republican and Democratic parties are "hopelessly corrupt" and because the "Communist party alone is working to educate and to organize the classes dispossessed by the present system," American intellectuals will vote for Communist candidates in the presidential election. It will be their way of protesting against the appalling waste and the indescribable misery inherent in the present economic system."

They can't be blamed. Communism makes beautiful promises which never have stood the cold water test. Interested in pure reason, a bona fide intellectual is helpless in the presence of apparently faultless theory. It never occurs to him that all systems were new once—new and perfect. But human fallibility twisted and corrupted them past recognition, even as Communism will be spoiled some day.

Intellectuals are rather to be admired than blamed for not keeping their feet on the ground. Flying away from reality, after all, is more pleasant than wrestling with it—and, in the case of politics very nearly as practical. Just try to catch a professional smart man concepting, of course, the eminent Dr. Butler) trimming his ideals to compensate for human shortcomings or to keep from straying too far from the realm of immediate possibility. Run sky to where he shines and all who would talk to him must fly there.

Created To Die.

The farce of representative government in Germany continues with what might be called comic opera verve, if it did not portray the desperate conduct of a great nation set to the compromise of governing itself in a modern world.

Chancellor von Papen facing the new reichstag for the first time made his invocation to dissolve that bothersome parliament suddenly halted by a parliamentary coup. A chaotic wrangle is precipitated, in which the stubborn representatives of certain restless sections of the German population will try to retaliate by law that they beat the cabinet to the draw, voting it out of power before it could vote them out of office.

This much is certain. Germany is getting farther and farther away from the principles of representative democracy which it espoused, in desperation, during the terrible post war period. It stands no longer as the crossroads it has chosen a course that leads away from the type of government fashioned so strongly by the United States during war days.

No German cabinet can function in cooperation with the people's representatives. It is a poor explanation to say that government by executive order as carried out by Paul von Hindenburg is allowed to continue by a popular majority. In fact, that is a confession of the people's lack of faith.

Plunging of trouble follow each other in the German government with such rapidity that imminent disaster can come to be the world's overnight expectation. In the latest conflict between the cabinet and the reichstag there is a hint that another major break in the uneven course of the reich's affairs is due.

It's a Match

Readers of old Ohio residents will flutter and swirl if Gilbert Bettman and Senator Bulkley ever get around to their debate on the prohibition issue between their respective parties. Imagine rival candidates for an Ohio senatorship each trying to prove he is a better anti-prohibitionist than his opponent. Wayne B. Wheeler built well but he couldn't outwit time.

Aside from the question, the match itself is worth the trouble. The attorney general is an able gentleman, as he has proved on many occasions. He sits on the oratorical stool gracefully. The sight of him hearing at the Democratic senator with lance held straight and colors flying would stir up enthusiasm in Republican hearts long turned cold by ceaseless repetition of the same old stuff.

In the other camp, betting would be heavy on the senator, who, if less an exhibitionist in verbal jousting, yields nothing when it comes to steadiness. Whereas Mr. Bettman seems to be able to make himself a part of his linguistic mount, Mr. Bulkley has a facility for hard driving that impresses by its firm purpose.

Cincinnati it is said will be the scene of the jousting. May it turn out—if it turns out—to be only a provocation for another and another and yet another contest in the debating lists. Politics in the Buckeye state can stand a little of the purposeful clashing that Mr. Bettman and Mr. Bulkley should be able to stage for the interested multitude.

Comment of the Press

BEFORE THE CHILDREN RETURN TO SCHOOL.

The time-honored practice of seeing that children are in proper physical condition before permitting them to enter school should not be neglected this year, even though there is the temptation to do so because of the expense that may be involved. One of the worst features of the depression is the fact that it is causing many persons to neglect themselves. Even though statistics show that the nation's health is better than in ordinary times many are not correcting the defects or curing the ills that they should. In the case of older people this will show up later in increased illness and suffering. In the case of children it may have injurious effects which a lifetime of care can not overcome.

The average child loses about seven per cent of school time, or about two weeks, because of preventable defects. Common colds, dental defects, adenoids, bad tonsils, defective vision, poor nutrition and certain constitutional disorders are the most frequently recurring of these and should be attended to if the child is to take advantage of his opportunities.

Colds cause the greatest loss of time. It is important that the child's resistance should be raised to the highest possible level in order that they do not leave effects which will injure his future health.

Defective teeth are not only painful and cause loss of time but may bring about a serious heart condition. Adenoids interfere with breathing and tend to lower a child's intelligence. Bad tonsils may cause heart disease and rheumatism and increase a child's chances of contracting communicable diseases.

Faulty vision and bad hearing are handicaps which will increase with time unless they are corrected. Malnutrition leaves a boy or girl open to all the ills of childhood.

All of these defects should receive attention and children should be immunized against smallpox and diphtheria. Even though all this costs money, the expense is trifling in comparison with the relief it may bring and the help that will result to children all the rest of their lives.—Youngstown Vindicator.

COOLIDGE'S COUNSEL TO VOTERS.

Former President Calvin Coolidge, in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, urges the re-election of President Hoover for what he has done and what he has prevented. It is comparatively easy for the people to give a man credit for what he does, but they are not so likely to realize what he has prevented although that may be much more important. The President has been constantly alert during the worst period of depression in the history of the country and of the world. He has shown patience and good judgment under most trying conditions.

The chief executive has been criticised unfairly and thoughtlessly by some who seem to believe the way to handle the unemployment problem is by what he can do to the individual. He has endeavored to apply the remedy where it would be permanent and to the advantage of the largest number. The relief organization he created has undertaken to finance the unemployed by getting jobs for them. It has extended assistance to banks and insurance companies, to railroads and other institutions to keep business going along as near to usual as possible.

The former president very pertinently urges that we should take into account not only what has happened but what might now be the situation had it not been for the leadership and executive ability of President Hoover. Conditions are far from satisfactory in the country as they are everywhere. But we have weathered the storm in better shape than most countries and the clouds are passing. The prosperity, enterprise and capacity of a government of a hundred and twenty-five million souls in the present emergency. The government has a real program and one with which he is familiar and which has stood the test of time. It is not a case of trying to find a way to successful administration. It has.—Des Moines Register.

Daily Guide to Health

Arresting Cancerous Growth.

Much information, as well as a great deal of misinformation has been published about cancer. I am glad to say that while the cause of this disease has not been discovered, our knowledge concerning it has increased very greatly. Today I want to point out some of the many misconceptions about cancer.

In all probability cancer is not infectious nor contagious. By this I mean it can not be transmitted from one person to another. Many shun those afflicted with cancer for fear they may contract the disease. No case has ever been reported that has been definitely proved to be caused by direct contact with the disease.

Another false idea about cancer is that it is rapid in its progress and necessarily fatal. This belief has given rise to the comparison of cancer to a fire spreading rapidly in its destructive course.

It is true that after a certain length of time the cancerous cells multiply and grow rapidly. In its early stages however it is slow in its growth. When recognized in this stage and proper treatment is applied, the disease is curable.

When overlooked or neglected, cancer is permitted to reach the stage of rapid growth. In that event the disease may spread to other parts of the body, this occurrence is called "metastasis." When it takes place it is extremely serious.

I am frequently asked as to whether or not cancer is hereditary. That the tendency to cancer exists in certain families has long been recognized. However, there is no proof that cancer is a hereditary disease. Nor is there any proof that an individual related to a family in which there have been many cases of cancer is more liable to the disease than one in whose family cancer has not occurred.

Impaired health, general vague discomfort, and loss of weight, may be the only signs of the disease. In the early stages of cancer there is only slight pain this increases as the disease progresses. The pain varies in intensity too, depending upon the location of the cancer.

The number of cases of cancer has appeared to have increased within the past five years. It can not be definitely said that the increased figures mean an actual increase in the disease. They may mean an increase in the number of cases now recognized in the early stages. In former years, when the X ray and other advanced methods of diagnosis were not available to every one the disease was rarely recognized until pretty well advanced.

Please bear in mind that cancer need not be a fatal disease. By means of the X ray, radium and modern surgical technique many cases of cancer can be definitely cured. This cure is only possible when the disease is recognized in its early stages.

Early diagnosis can be made if you report to your doctor at regular intervals. Take inventory of your health every six months. Do this regardless of how well you feel. Early discovery is the surest means of combatting cancer and other ailments.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

LIMITS OF FREEDOM.

A little boy whose parents were rearing him according to modern methods, began one day in a moment of anger to strike his father. Told again and again to stop he persisted until suddenly his father caught his hands and held him fast. "Now hit me if you can," he said. Angry still the child struggled and then realized his helplessness.

"You can think anything you want, sonny," his father said, "and you can say straight out whatever you think, but you can't hit me. You see, I am stronger than you and I won't let you."

After a little further talk, the boy climbed upon his father's lap and they were good friends once more. That was an excellent concrete lesson in the limits of freedom which a child may be allowed. It is important for a child to learn no matter how liberal his environment, where his power ends and the rights of others to protect their comfort and safety begin.

Of course this particular lesson is possible only in a home where corporal punishment is never used. Where it is the child would only accept such a demonstration as evidence of his father's unjust strength, against which he must bide his time.

It does no harm to let the child learn just where the might of his own will ends and that of unalterable external circumstances begins.

One should not try to soften the edge of the experience which teaches him that if one dawdles one comes too late to go on the automobile ride, that if one breaks a toy it is not miraculously made whole again, that if one spends his money it is gone, and if one pits himself against a superior force he most certainly will be worsted.

CHANDLERSVILLE.

In 1798 Capt. John Chandler moved from southern Vermont to the site of the present town of Chandlersville on the Pennsylvania railroad east of Zanesville.

Chandler knew something about the salt business and had the business sagacity to realize the demand for salt in the new country soon to be created into a state. He had a large family of children, mostly fully grown and the majority of them sons. He therefore had the force to do things quickly and it is recorded in Muskingum county history that within three days after arriving at the springs with his family he had his cabin completed and was living in it.

Within two years Captain Chandler had cleared his land, planted crops and had money and credit enough to buy the salt works which up to that time had operated as a community enterprise—those depending upon the source of their salt only taking the precaution to have an agreement with the new proprietor as to the price to be paid for the salt.

LOVE MASTERS FEAR — There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.—I John 4:18.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLETCHER

Washington, Sept. 14—Senator Samuel Shortridge of California, tall, serious and a new speaker, always had a favorable comment when he discussed his career as a public official.

"I've only held two public offices in my life—trustee of the Salem high school and United States senator from California," he told the senate. "Now he is to be the senator. One Mr. Grant Tubbs eliminated [illegible] the Republican primary.

Shortridge's departure from the senate will remove from that body one of Hoover's ardent boosters. The senator never lost an opportunity to extol the virtues of the president and to praise the administration of Herbert Hoover.

His seat in the senate is directly across from that of Tom Heflin of Florida. The two quarreled in many debates about the relative merits of California and Florida.

Further evidence let him get bitter.

unchallenged in his claims. Their arguments at times afforded the senate some of its most amusing moments. Shortridge would always give Florida its due but he always asserted, too, that California had just a shade better of climate, just a little bit sweeter oranges, just a trifle larger avocados.

They called him the "silver-tongued orator of the Pacific" before he came to the senate. On the senate floor however, he rarely displayed his oratorical ability.

He was fond of interjecting remarks in a running debate. This was done with great ceremony. Shortridge always does things with a bit of a flourish and grandiosely.

Bowing gravely, the essence of courtesy and deference, he breaks in for a question or an observation. His courtesy is unfailing when he deals with his colleagues. And it's a brand of courtesy definitely "Shortridgesque."

But he can be stern as well. He is just one of the leaders of the senate and more recently with he who dares to flaunt them.

New York Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, Sept. 14—Broadway offers the diversion of the old-time barker at his busiest these days. Not even the inadequate whisperings of the coochi-dance spiel are being neglected. And most of the exhibits, like the couch dancer, offer something but the ballyhoo.

One grand inmate of a decade ago is bannered in vivid red thus: "Living Figures in Sex Madness." It is a side bit of old-time Barnum showmanship. Analyze it and it means nothing. Inside one learns that a "rumble-seat type of entertainment" is in continuous entertainment.

Scantily dressed comedienne ambles across stage. They are the "living figures in sex madness." A intervals, more in the manner "strip act." When the customer realizes he has been duped he exits sheepishly and praises the performance to trick his friends.

Much patronage is argued by the sucker egging on the prospective sucker. No one admits being "took." The Salon de Art is another gamble, because gyp to starving with its array of painted nudes outside. Inside is about as exciting as the chariot race at the flea circus.

But there's no disappointment in the bonus-lipped morning of the barker. He is there with all his gay, pimp wardrobe—cane gold-topped cane, pare diamond ring over Niagara mustache cooing "Snow row gonna on." The sensation of two continents. Step this way—walking the words as easily as he did in your pump and mine.

I confess to surprise on a choke over this. It was in a letter from Jack Carr. I knew there must be a depression when my mother wrote me she was an investment-house bond widow. God bless her trusting soul. Scrimped and saved for years—and she might never be a burden, but we're independently through the twilight years. As though she could possibly be a burden ever. There must be some good in this awful depression if it brings mothers back that way to their boys.

On Lexington a circle in the 80's this morning I met a friend of long ago window shopping. He said that until recently he went everywhere in auto or taxi for a period of 15 years. "I'm broke now, he explained, "and have joined the walkers." And in departing he called over his shoulder: "Say you haven't seen anything unless you've prowled about at 5 and 10." I'm the same wondering who used to look bored at exciting first nights in other days.

A shop on Lexington, too, has a parrot reputedly 84 years of age. Her owner says she will talk to no one save a policeman. I succumbed to me—and it's a real problem at best—that the bird may have spent early years around a police station and heard the police talk. I quire "So you won't talk?" and saw what happens.

A. C. Blumenthal who produced the first pages as the man to carry on for Ziegfeld is one of the pin-up executives with the dynamic quality of making money felt in the business world. He weighs a little more than 200 pounds and to his intimates is a "Baumey." His manner is acquired some subject comes up that interests him. Then, all of a sudden, in excess of nervous energy he seems to lower like a mountain.

I once worked for a friend managing editor whose feet, when he sat in his swivel chair, did not touch the floor. A roaring political bully who felt himself on top of the day's editorial thunderhead like an avenging cloud. The city room came to a sudden stop. Figuratively blood streaked the moon. There is a legend that a ray gaze sends the lion cowering back to the jungle. Our managing editor, with the rest of us petrified and to the floor, walked briskly over to the railing and said: "I'm the managing editor here and you are making too much noise. Get out and quietly." The bully gasped, grew apoplectic and as suddenly grew white turned and left without a word. Later in life I came to know Marshall Field Wilder and I've always had a tremendous admiration for "the little guys."

Leo March toddles in with a joke from Punch and walks right out again. "A pessimist is a man who thinks the world is against him and is probably right."

DIET—AND DIVORCE.

If it is true that feminine curves are going to be fashionable once more, we predict the revival of old-fashioned marriage and foresee an inglorious end to the popularity of Reno.

If hips and waistlines are going to be smart, divorce will lose its vogue and we may look forward to a lot of golden weddings.

Reno has practically subsisted and flourished on the Hollywood diet. No woman can keep a sweet, placid, equable temper and a stream-line figure at the same time—unless God gave her both. Hunger, more than anything else, wrecks the nerves and spoils the disposition.

When reducing-diet fads go out and a woman can glow comfortably plump without apologizing for it, there will be much more sweetness and light in the average marriage.

Styles in women seem to change, as in everything else. The "It" girl of today may be as brown as a Malay, as slender as a wafer and as flat as the state of Kansas. But her father can remember when men liked their women well-upholstered, rounded like a loving cup and pink and white and soft skinned. And no man would have glanced twice at an animated bone.

If the girl of the Gay Nineties happened to be underweight, she filled out the hollow places with pads and bustles and plenty of ruffled underthings and drank cream twice a day. She had to look "substantial." And she would as soon have thought of blacking her teeth, as of letting Old Sol tan with her nose or her hands or her shoulders.

Now, a girl lies in a solarium all afternoon, so that she may become the color and texture of seal leather and then, goes home and dines on a lettuce-leaf—and calls it a day.

But, we still suspect that masculine taste runs to curves and dimples and soft white elbows. Men don't change much. And if plumpness becomes fashionable, marriage may revive romance as well as marriage. Who knows?

It is far easier and pleasanter to live with 150 pounds of placidity than with 98 pounds of nerves.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Sept. 14, 1922.

Officials in Washington said that partial settlement of the strike of 400,000 railway shop men effected by more than half a hundred railroads at a conference in Chicago, was merely a prelude to the establishment of general peace in the railroad industry.

The training field for the Marion Corning Indian football team south of LaRue was reported to be near completion and preparations were made for the arrival of players for practice.

The Marion Kiwanis club voted to send a telegram to Washington expressing the organization's gratification over continued improvement in the condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer and son Warren left for Lawrenceville, N. J., where Warren Sawyer was to enter a preparatory school.

Marion Lodge of Elks made arrangements for its annual picnic, to be held Sept. 27 at the J. M. Leeper grove north of Marion.

Miss Grace L. Black of near Marysville and Charles R. Shoap of Richwood were united in marriage by Rev. H. C. Gillespie at the Richwood Baptist parsonage.

Mrs. George B. Scofield was hostess to the Captain William Hendricks chapter of the D. A. R. at her home on Bellefontaine avenue, with Mrs. Roy Gottschall and Miss Esther Barnum as assistant hostesses.

John A. Schroeder was elected president of the Marion Welfare association.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Rack, superintendent and matron of the Marion County Children's home, resigned their positions after serving nearly eight years.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Sept. 14 1912.

H. A. Hartman, superintendent of schools, announced that a special committee of citizens might be named to investigate school facilities and decide whether there was right in maintaining there was need of additional room. R. A. Pennell, a member of the board of education, had declared "he was from Missouri" and had to be shown that the schools were actually congested.

Rev. Father Lawrence Dunn, brother of Rev. Father [illegible] Denning, pastor of St. Mary's church was appointed pastor of Catholic parishes at Lebanon and Xenia, O. He had been serving as assistant at Mary chapaln four years.

Darius D. Clarion, former probate judge of Wyandot county was found dead in his office at Upper Sandusky. He had [illegible] suddenly to apoplexy.

The Marion County Agricultural society decided to submit a proposed half mill tax levy to increase the revenues of the county to raise approximately $25,000 for erection of a new exhibition hall and grand stand at the fairgrounds. The hall, it was said, would be [illegible] so that it could be used for Chautauqua.

Miss Dorothy Hunter gave a party at her home on South Main street for several young people who were to enter college soon.

Mrs. P. C. Boyer was hostess to a party at her home on Bellefontaine street in celebration of the eighth birthday anniversary of her daughter Pauline and the fifth anniversary of her daughter Mabel.

James Kenney, 65, [illegible] was killed when hit by an Erie passenger train at Shiloh station, 5 miles east of Marion. A team of horses he was driving [illegible] Dennis Molloy, [illegible] also killed.

Yanks, Already "In," See Bruins as Foe in World Series

ANOTHER LOSS DIMS PITTSBURGH HOPE OF OVERTAKING CHICAGO

Windy City Team Splits with New York; Lead 5½ Games.

By The Associated Press

With the American league pennant tucked away, the Yankees sat back today and watched the progress of the race in the National and figured out what to buy with their share of the world series receipts.

They assured their participation in the classic with yesterday's 9 to 3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

While there still is some semblance of a fight for the National league diadem, the Yankee secret service can feel pretty safe in centering its activities on the Chicago Cubs.

Geo. Pipgras

By dividing a double bill with the New York Giants yesterday while Pittsburgh was being whitewashed by Ed Brandt of Boston, the Cubs increased their lead to five and a half games, with 12 to play.

George Pipgras, veteran Yankee, held the Indians to eight hits yesterday while his mates piled up 16 blows off Clint Brown and George Connally.

The Athletics sat idle as the Yanks sewed it up while the third place Washington Senators were taking a 4 to 0 trimming from the White Sox. The St. Louis Browns trimmed Boston's Red Sox, 9 to 4.

The Cubs and Giants had a pair of grand tussles at the Polo grounds, Chicago taking the first, 3 to 1, but dropping the night cap, 3 to 2.

Home runs by Wally Berger and Bill Urbanski featured the Braves' 3 to 0 win over Pittsburgh.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, still clinging to a mathematical chance at the pennant, downed St. Louis twice, 6 to 5, in 11 innings, and 3 to 1. Chuck Klein hit his thirty-sixth home run, a double and a single to help the Phillies crush Cincinnati, 7 to 1.

Tygers Still Tough

Taking a glance at the material now being worked over in the various N. C. O. football camps as the grid chiefs make ready for another championship campaign, it appears to be a rather sad, but apparently true, fact that Mansfield is the standout prospect to lead the circuit home this season in the matter of games won and lost.

Coach Pete Murphy has another aggregation of grid hopefuls rampaging through practice that would cause the average high school mentor to howl with glee. Not that Murphy did not lose any of his crack ball carriers or linemen of his powerful 1931 team. He lost plenty, among them Fichter, center, Fitch, quarterback (and what a quarterback), Heitz, Altaffer, Mellullen, Ternocky, Luckey, McKinney and Sweetenman. But he has a whole flock of candidates to take their places and the only one whose loss should be keenly felt is Fisch. Quarterbacks like Fitch just don't come along every day in high school.

Ashland Stronger

Ashland, the team which last fall walked, ran, and trampled over Harding to the tune of 24-0, is back this year with a team stronger than last season. They hardly figure to take Mansfield's place as champion, but the Hilltoppers may give Murphy's boys quite a lot of opposition. Nick Dolby is slated to direct the team at quarter and do a lot of other things which good football players are expected to do. Jim Jesson, the fastest man in the league, will be at half and that means all kinds of difficulty for opponents, for how that boy can tear when he tucks a pigskin under his arm and sets sail for an enemy goal. Rosie Stern needs only to uncover one tackle and he will be pretty well set for a good season. He'll probably find one. He usually does.

Shelby Doubtful

Shelby is all hepped up about its prospects for accomplishing things but from this point of vantage it looks like Coach Chick Young has pretty much of a task on his hands. Shelby lost several regulars, chief among them Jim Miller, the dynamic star who led the Whippets for three straight years. Young may find a man to succeed Miller, a quarterback, but he hasn't proved it yet. Miller was an unusual young man, quite unusual in fact. He is reputed to have had little regard for what coaches or anyone else had to say about how a thing should be done. He might have been a bit better if he had but the fact remains that he was just about as good a football player as N. C. O. fans had the pleasure of seeing in action last year. He was certainly the spark plug of the Shelby team and when he wasn't in there, Shelby wasn't very much in there either, if you get what I mean. Still Shelby is confident of having a winner. If the boys themselves are half as confident as the townsfolk, the Whippets will be no push-over for any team. They won't be, anyway.

Galion Optimistic

Galion is looking forward to a nine-game schedule with a good deal of optimism, but on first look, the optimism, insofar as a championship is concerned, seems to come more from hope than any thing else. Fred McClintock lost 11 lettermen last season and while a number of experienced players are returning, it appears unlikely that the Orangemen will come anywhere near close to burning up the league. However, McClintock doesn't turn out very many weak teams in a row and last season his boys failed to win a league encounter. Perhaps they'll do an about face this season and better their way to a high position.

WILLIAMS SHATTERS PINS FOR 344 SCORE

Smart & Waddell Pin Combine Rolls High Three-Game Total.

Charles Williams aided the Smart & Waddell pin combine to rack up the highest three-game total last night as the All-Star bowling league went through the second night of competition in the current season. Williams blasted away at the maples for a high single game total of 643 and his mates added enough points to carry the team's three-game score to 2,505. Williams rolled 214 and 193 in his other two games.

Whipps, rolling under the banner of the Serv-U-Wel grocers, turned in a 257 for his single game high. Hofstetter of the Jim Dugan team and Wright of the Wright Transfer recorded high totals of 231 and 236.

The City bowling circuit will be the second of the city leagues to launch 1932 competition tonight at the Recreation alleys. The All-Star is the only league already started.

Ingram Seeks Color in California Grid Machine

By The Associated Press

BERKELEY, Calif., Sept. 14—Big Bill Ingram believes in satisfying public demand which is one of the reasons the University of California football will run the touchpiets shift as part of its gridiron down trail this season with a comrepertoire.

"The fans want color," Coach Ingram said in explaining his adopting of the "frog hop" style of football. "The shift is the best show in football. It is also effective when you have the right type of players. We're going to give the fans a real shift. We also expect to win quite a few games with it."

The system of play with which the Bears hope to befuddle not only west coast rivals but also the intersectional opposition, is a change in formations known as the 1-3-3-shift.

The boys huddle as usual. Then the center breaks for the ball while the rest of the team form two lines of five players each. From this lineup they jump into one of three formations, single or double wing back or punt formation. This effect is military-like in its precision.

Last season was Ingram's first as coach at California. His team finished as runner-up for the coast conference championship. His material is of the "bigger and better" variety this season in that there are more players on hand and more potential stars in uniforms.

FEW VETS IN FIELD AS MATCH PLAY OF TOURNAMENT STARTS

Youthful Stars Shoot Fine Golf To Win Posts in National Amateur.

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 14—The veterans of American amateur golf could muster scarcely a corporal's guard today as the match play rounds for the national championship started over Five Farms course here.

There were Francis Ouimet, the champion from Boston; George Voigt, Charles "Chick" Evans, Chandler Egan and Jesse Guilford, but most of the others were with Bobby Jones in the gallery — forced out by the spectacular shooting of the newcomers in yesterday's final qualifying round.

OUIMET
The Champ

Three of the four qualifying leaders were up for the first time, along with 11 others making their first bids for the cup of amateur supremacy.

Among these was Johnny Fischer, 20-year-old University of Michigan sophomore from Cincinnati, who put together two fine tours of 69-73 to equal the 142 record for the medal competition held jointly by Jones and D. C. Corkran of Baltimore.

FISCHER

Except for The Medalist three narrowly missed putts, Fischer would have surpassed the record.

Johnny Goodman of Omaha, came second with 144, but Wilfred Crossley of Bedham, Mass., and Perry Hall of Philadelphia, with 145s, were rank outriders.

Others who placed their names on the books for the first time were Edwin McClure of Shreveport, La., Charles Yates of Atlanta, W. C. Chapin of Rochester, N. Y., Gene Vinson of Meridian, Miss., John Parker of West Orange, N. J., and Bill Blaney of West Newton, Mass.

MUD HENS GAIN IN ASSOCIATION RACE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 14—While the management of the Cleveland Indians debates whether or not to complete the purchase of the Toledo American Association franchise, the Mud Hens apparently are trying to help make the proposition more attractive by reaching third place.

The Indians must decide by tomorrow, and the Hens today were in a virtual tie with Milwaukee for fourth place.

While the Brewers were losing to St. Paul yesterday, 8 to 7, Toledo bumped off Louisville, 11 to 1, using the old fashioned slugging method.

St. Paul turned on a sensational ninth inning rally which ended when Ben Paschal stole home.

Indianapolis gained another game on Columbus trimming the Red Birds, 4 to 3, in a night game. Minneapolis and Kansas City were idle.

NOT DECIDED

Cleveland Defers Decision on Buying of Mud Hens.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 14—Toledo baseball fans will know within another 24 hours whether Cleveland will purchase their American Association club. An option on the team expires tomorrow.

Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club, was unable yesterday to come to Toledo to study the situation and determine whether the Indians would exercise the option under which they operated the Toledo team this season. He promised, however, to bring Joseph Hostetler, the Indians' attorney, for a final conference today.

Cleveland's option calls for payment of $60,000 for the Mud Hens but local gossip had it the Indians probably would try to get the price scaled down should they decide to take up the option.

OHIO GRID COACHES SHIFT PLAYERS TO AID WEAKER PLACES

Linemen and Backs Juggled as Holes Are Discovered by Mentors.

By The Associated Press

Hopeful of strengthening weak spots, Ohio football coaches today experimented with shifts in their lineups. Ends were worked in the backfield and linemen were moved from one position to another in the hope players would adapt themselves to new assignments.

At Ashland, three potential backfield men were put in the backfield. Captain Berry, Emmons and Otto, ends, were given an opportunity to run with the ball.

Ferguson, sophomore tackle, was shifted temporarily to center position at Denison during a signal practice yesterday.

The second day of the practice season had its casualty, the first reported in college circles. Dave Appleby, end at Akron, wrenched a shoulder in the first scrimmage.

Otterbein's hopefuls held their first practice today. Thirty-five were expected to report.

Ohio Wesleyan, downcast when Wilmer Dickerson, veteran halfback failed to show up, cheered up considerably yesterday as he joined the practice throng.

At other football camps, the second day of practice went off with programmy routine. Capital gridders were kept busy tackling dummies, passing and punting. The fifty members of the Ohio university squad concentrated on running punts. Wooster's squad ran signals, practiced passing and was given a review of fundamentals.

HONEST OPERATION CAN YOU HAVE IF I WANT TO RUN? WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A GEORGE WASHINGTON - A JEFFERSON - ANDREW JACKSON - ABRAHAM LINCOLN -
WELL - I DON'T WANT YOU TO BE A POLITICIAN -
AND I DON'T WANT TO BE A POLITICIAN - I AM A TRUE AMERICAN CITIZEN WHO TAKES PRIDE IN MY COUNTRY AND MY FLAG - I AM A PATRIOT - A STATESMAN! I WOULD LAY MY LIFE DOWN GLADLY TO SERVE THE NATION - AND THAT IS THE TYPE OF MAN THE COUNTRY NEEDS MORE OF - THE TROUBLE WITH US TODAY IS - THAT THERE ARE TOO MANY POLITICIANS - WITH THEIR GREEDY HANDS OUTSTRETCHED - ASKING FOR MORE - THINKING ONLY OF THE NEXT ELECTION - WHILE A STATESMAN A TRUE PATRIOT - IS THINKING OF THE NEXT GENERATION -
